

MOCK CHOCOLATE TRIAL

Do you want to learn a little bit about clinical research?

Come and take part in the Cambridge Clinical Research Facility's 'Mock Chocolate Trial' and see what it is like to read research information, give informed consent and be randomised to a 'trial chocolate' (1 of 2 flavours).

Step 1:

- Read the (pretend) 'Chocolate Trial Participant Information Sheet'
- Consider the information and decide if you want to take part

Step 2:

- Give your informed consent by agreeing to the statements (tick the box), print your name, sign your name and date the consent form

Step 3 + 4:

- Take a piece of paper from the randomisation bowl. The number indicates which chocolate you will eat (no 1 or no 2)
- Take a chocolate from the bowl as randomised and eat

Step 5:

- Complete the feedback sheet and tell us if the chocolate was less tasty, the same, or more tasty than your usual chocolates
